Editorial Review

Review

"Julie Zeilinger is the big sister every smart girl needs freshman year. Her book is your key to surviving and thriving during college and beyond. She threw out the cookie cutter stuff that everyone tells you about college and got down to the nitty gritty details that you are just dying to know." - Emily Raleigh, founder of The Smart Girls Group

"The book is written in a hyper-friendly and accessible style, with leanings towards a feminist/liberal slant. Which makes sense since the author is the founder and editor of feminist blog thefbomb.org. It also reads very up-to-date, with references to current themes which resonate with teens, such as faux pas to avoid when using social media, for instance." - Teens Wanna Know

About the Author

Julie Zeilinger is originally from Pepper Pike, OH, and is a member of the Barnard College Class of 2015. Julie is the founder and editor of The FBomb, a feminist blog and community for teens and young adults who care about their rights and want to be heard. Julie has been named one of Newsweek's "150 Women Who Shake The World," one of the "Eight most influential bloggers under 21" by Women's Day Magazine, one of More Magazine's "New Feminists You Need To Know," and one of The Times of London's "40 Bloggers Who Really Count." Her writing has been published on the Huffington Post, Forbes, and CNN amongst other publications. She is also the author of A Little F'd Up: Why Feminism Is Not a Dirty Word (2012).
